

ABSTRACT

A DRAM fabricated on an SOI substrate employing single body devices as memory cells without relying on a field through the insulative layer of the SOI is described. Floating body devices are defined by orthogonally disposed lines with both a front gate and back gate for each body being formed on the insulative layer.